

Clore Duffield & Common Purpose

I have just been examining the blog of stef lewandowski. He is on the Clare Leadership Programme who state "our aim is to help to train and develop a new generation of leaders for the cultural sector" Using similar language to that found on CP's website they state

The 2008/9 cohort of Fellows was announced on 5 June 2008;

Stef Lewandowski states that The Cultural Leadership Programme are generously sponsoring my Clare Fellowship. You can read more about him here

On his blog he describes how he was playing a 'dragon in the den' at a Common Purpose event as part of their Navigator Programme on leadership development.

This is how he describes Roger Helmer and Brian Gerrish on his blog -

According to Member of the European Parliament Roger Helmer and friends including self-proclaimed submarine warfare advisor to Thatcher, Brian Gerrish, there is a conspiracy happening across Europe to bring about a "New World Order" where a group of all-powerful seven-foot-high lizards will seize power of all that we hold dear, using nothing other than professional development training provided by a charity called "Common Purpose", and engaging in a little corruption, mind-control and (most bizarrely) paedophilia along the way
Common Purpose are the seven-foot-high lizards who really run Birmingham

As a reminder - 20:20 is Common Purpose's programme that brings together senior leaders from across the UK. It provides the cross-sector group of senior decision-makers with a wide-angle view of the way the UK works, where it sits in an international context and what its long-term future holds.

And amongst their

Leadership Programme Strategy Board we find

John Holden Head of Development, Demos

The following was revealed following examination of the Clare Duffield Foundation website

A Consultation Paper, commissioned from Demos by a consortium of arts funders, including the Clare Duffield Foundation, with a view to providing a new and coherent direction for culture and education was released earlier this year. Consultation was widely sought and a final report will be published later in 2008.

Within the Consultation paper you will learn that amongst the recommendations is the proposal that

The cultural sector needs a sustained campaign, aimed partly at the education system and partly at government. The objective must be for cultural learning to become embedded across the social and educational landscape that it inhabits. This calls for cultural educators to get involved with new education initiatives, Local Authority Area Agreements, and Cultural Consortia – among others.

The governing bodies of schools and other learning settings and the Boards of cultural organisations could adopt explicit policies in relation to cultural learning, so that stakeholders and users are clear about their goals, standards and commitment. Similarly, culture should be an explicit part of the Children and Young People's Plans required under Every Child Matters.

and here's what appears to be the use of Aesopian language

"Learning needs to be embedded in programming. Learning and programming should be one thing, but the tradition of seeing audiences as passive conflicts with seeing the learner as active and central." - Page 37.
