Frontrunner

Frontrunner is a four-day residential programme, free of charge, for between 40-60 pre-career leaders from across the UK.

~~The programme targets young people~~ who have already shown evidence of leadership skills in civil society through their activities and aims to inspire them to continue campaigning for change in their future careers.

This year the programme will be held between 2 – 5 July at the University of Westminster's Harrow Campus. The programme consists of a wide variety of inspiring speakers. Last year these included:

- ~~Sarah...~~ - LIB DEM
- Peter Tatchell, spokesman, Outrage!
- Phil Harding, Director English Network and News BBC
- Dr Musharraf Hussain, Member of the Muslim Council of Britain
- Sue Stapley, Media Campaigner, Quiller Consultants
- Piers Le Marchant, Managing Director & European Legal Director, Lehman Brothers
- Madi Sharma, Member of the European Economic Social Committee
- Krish Ravel, Social Entrepreneur
- Brett Wigdortz, Chief Executive, TeachFirst

Participants will go on visits across different sectors and learn leadership skills required to be effective campaigners in the workplace and change the society we live in. All pre-career leaders who have already taken a lead in creating effective change and wants to continue to make a difference should go on this programme!

Last year's participants described it as a great way to realise "how much I want to change things and how I can do it."

What will you gain?

This programme will help you become a more effective campaigner for change in the workplace and will also provide a diverse and stimulating new network of other leaders across the UK.

- Develop your skills to be an effective leader at work and in civil society
- Introduce you to leaders who have already made a difference in society
- Get you involved in the UK's most diverse network of leaders and form a network of other young people who are taking an active role in civil society
- Learn to Lead Beyond Authority, both personally and professionally

Who is Fronrunner for?

The Fronrunner residential is an intensive four-day leadership programme for young leaders who:

- have demonstrated leadership – big or small in their school, university, workplace or community
- will contribute to the breadth of perspectives and the dynamics of the group
- will participate fully in the four-day programme.

How do I apply?

The application period for Fronrunner 2007 will open on Monday 26 February 2007. You will be able to apply online using the Common Purpose website.
